During times of extreme disruption comes the opportunity to create meaningful change. While it may seem counter-intuitive, now is the right time to start redesigning care as payer contract mandates shift toward improved patient outcomes at decreased cost. During this program we will discuss tested strategies that can be modified to fit any healthcare setting, patient population or clinical site. Aligning the workforce to care for patients differently has proven to be a successful game plan to empower and re-energize nurses, and care teams to transform care delivery, improve healthcare equity, and better meet the needs of the people we serve.

Learn what it means to be a Trauma-informed leader. Conflict and drama are common when individuals are struggling to move past trauma. Together, we will think through how leaders can be present for themselves and their teams to facilitate coping and growth. When leaders harness relational practices of attuning, wondering, following, and holding, they can provide an intentional and consistent presence while modeling compassion and empathy for colleagues and teams. The session will focus on practical strategies to help all leaders stay in the moment and remain present and supportive during stressful and highly emotional encounters.
