KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Dr. Renee Thompson DNP, RN, CSP

CEO & Founder, Healthy Workforce Institute

With more than 30 years as a clinical nurse, nurse educator, quality manager, and nurse executive, Dr. Thompson is a leading authority on workplace bullying and incivility and works with healthcare leaders to cultivate a healthy workplace and a professional workforce.

8 Attributes of a Healthy Work Culture

You've heard the saying: People don't leave jobs; they leave toxic work cultures! A toxic culture negatively impacts turnover, productivity, work satisfaction, and patient outcomes. As hospitals face widespread workforce shortages, organizational success is more dependent on a healthy culture than ever before.

Culture should not be a stand-alone initiative, but, rather, a priority that is continually reinforced to meet the goals of a department and organization. Leaders must be equipped with strategies to foster a positive organizational culture to engage and retain their workforce.

Designed for all nurse leaders, this session shares the eight fundamental attributes of cultivating and sustaining a healthy work culture and how to embed these attributes within your department and organization.
